

Dr. Eleni Galani

Short curriculum vitae (CV)

Dr. Eleni Galani studied at the medical school of the University of Patras from September 1988 until July 1994.

For her performance during her studies, she received a scholarship from the State scholarships Foundation. She started her training in internal medicine at General Oncology Hospital Agioi Anargyroi and completed it at Therapeutic Clinical Hospital of Alexandra.

In 2001 after exams, she received the specialty in internal medicine. During her internship she attended and completed the post graduate program in Oncology, at national and Kapodistrian University of Athens.

At the same time, at national and Kapodistrian University of Athens she worked on her PHD in oncology. From 2001 to 2004 she worked at paid position as a Senior Clinical Fellow at Guys and St. Thomas hospital in London, where she specialized at medical oncology.

Dr Eleni Galani was awarded the fellowship of the European Society of Medical Oncology (ESMO) and furthermore the fellowship of the Hellenique Society of Medical Oncology (HESMO). In 2005 Dr. Galani was boarded certified in Medical Oncology. From 2005 she has been worked as a medical oncologist initially at Henry Dunant hospital and since 2007 at Metropolitan hospital.

Dr. Eleni Galani is an author on more than 40 original publications in medical journals, has presented over 100 papers in Greek and international conferences. She has been invited as a speaker and has chaired several medical conferences. Dr. Galani is also a key author in international and national oncology books.

Dr. Eleni Galani is a member of the following scientific committees: General Medical Council (GMC), the UK (registration number 6032207), Medical Association of Athens (registration number 055811), Hellenic society of Medical Oncology (HESMO), American Society of Clinical Oncology (ASCO), Medical Oncology Physicians Corporation of Greece (EOPE), Tumor markers Society (General Secretary).